

State Superintendent

Maryland Department of Education

www.marylandpublicschools.org

The Maryland State Board of Education seeks a new State Superintendent to lead the Maryland Department of Education and to guide local school systems in their combined effort of creating a world-class, benchmarked educational system. The Board desires a visionary, inspirational leader who can work collaboratively with all stakeholder groups from the classroom to the Board room. The Board's goal is to build on past success and ensure that all students graduate high school college and career ready.

In addition to being a state that highly values education, Maryland has been recognized by three independent agencies for the past three years as being the #1 state in the nation in providing public education services. These recognitions include:

- Education Week's annual ranking of the State public education systems
- The College Board for Advanced Placement (AP) performance
- The Washington Post's Challenge Index

The successful candidate should hold a deep understanding of curriculum and instruction, possess a proven track record of improving student learning, believe in educating the whole child, engage and support educators in their collective reform efforts, be highly experienced with the legislative process, recognize the importance of business and community partnerships, and value diversity in both the student population and the workforce.
